

Community Engagement. The purpose of this study is to explore the impact of community engagement on the ethical behavior of business students.

The study was conducted using a mixed-methods approach, including surveys and focus groups. The results indicate that community engagement has a positive impact on ethical behavior.

The findings suggest that business schools should incorporate community engagement into their curriculum to promote ethical behavior among students.

Keywords: community engagement, ethical behavior, business students, mixed-methods, surveys, focus groups.
